85th Year Opens as "Exciting and Interesting"
With Enrollment Bulge and Growing Pains;
Faculty Begins Self-Evaluation Study

CROSS-CUTTING THE CAMPUS

THE OPENING of any college year is "exciting and interesting" and, from this angle, it looks like the 85th year may be even a little more so.

That wartime "baby boom" has hit Juniata this year with an impact that is felt not only by bulges in enrollment but by assorted pains of growing.

The College opened in September with the largest enrollment in its history (800) and that has created some interesting and exciting problems. More space is being obtained by constructing a new residence hall for men and planning for additional buildings. New sources of money are being developed as operating costs go up in caring for 800 students.

By its very nature as a good college, Juniata is seeking to progress, to reach new heights of scholarship and service, to anticipate the needs of a changing society and to meet its responsibilities in the decades to come.

Self-Evaluation

ONE TECHNIQUE is a periodic, full-scale, self-evaluation of the complete program of the College. This re-study is being undertaken this year in preparation for a visit from an "accreditation team" from the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in 1962.

With this in mind, the faculty devoted its pre-opening conference to a discussion of self-evaluation. Guest speaker was F. Taylor Jones, executive secretary of the Middle States Association.

In his talk, Mr. Jones described the scope and purpose of the Association, reviewed its history and the background of Juniata's affiliation with the Association. Most colleges, including Juniata, became affiliated in 1920.

Early Evaluation

WHEN JUNIATA conducted its first evaluation to seek approval to be placed on the first list of accredited colleges, the College had 131 students, 14 faculty (two of them part-time), a faculty salary maximum of $2,000, provided faculty housing for $20 to $25 per month, the library had 28,000 volumes and apples sold for $1.00 a bushel. Juniata was not named to the first list primarily because the evaluating committee said its endowment was too small, faculty salaries were not adequate, the admissions policy of taking students below the "first list" of high schools was questionable.

Juniata was placed on the accredited list in 1922.

Through the years, other inquiries and questionnaires were conducted, but the first full-scale evaluation was not held until 1951. As most of you know Juniata retained its accreditation.

What is accreditation? Mr. Jones described the term simply as an expression of confidence on the part of serious, competent persons after thorough study of an institution to determine: 1—that the institution knows precisely what its purpose is for students; 2—that it has established the means for carrying out the purpose; 3—that it is doing what it sets out to do.

Study Committees

THE SELF-STUDY is now under way. President Ellis appointed a coordinating committee, headed by Dean Morley Mays '32 and composed of the chairmen of nine sub-committees.

These chairmen are: Ronald L. Cherry '53 (organization and administration); Dr. John R. Comerford '50 (program); A. William Engel, Jr. (outcomes); John T. Fike '35 (finance and facilities); Dr. Eva R. Hartzler '38 (faculty and teaching); Dean Paul M. Heberling (student personnel services); Mrs. Sarah S. Hettinger '24 (library); Dr. Donald M. Rockwell (objectives); Miss Miriam A. Schlegel (special programs).

800 Are Enrolled

ANOTHER "moderate" increase has pushed the College's enrollment to a record high of 800 for the Fall term, Registrar Cherry has reported.

This total is only 22 more than last year's mark, but the increase, particularly among resident students, has forced crowded conditions in college facilities. Approximately 90 men are living in private homes while a new residence hall for men is under construction.

The registration summary shows 693 resident and 77 non-resident among the classified students. In addition, there are 25 unclassified and five special students. Total figures show 460 men and 340 women.

In the resident enrollment, which is the largest in the college's 85-year history, there are 389 men and 304 women. A breakdown by class reveals: 132 seniors, 171 juniors, 191 sophomores and 276 freshmen.

New Class Welcomed

THE "BOOM" means that more and more good students are seeking admission to Juniata. Upwards of 270 new students were welcomed to the campus in September.

Those selected from 791 who applied were students "who seemed to give promise of being most able to profit by an education at Juniata." Actually, 91 percent of the class was graduated in the upper two-fifths of its high school class with College Board averages in the middle 500s.

Members of the Class of 1964 represent 13 states, with 74 percent from Pennsylvania and 14 percent from New Jersey. Coeds are outnumbered by a narrow margin 140-130.

Curriculum Revised

CHANGES have taken place in the preparation of students now coming to Juniata and it has been necessary to adjust the curriculum to the special abilities of the students of this generation.

The general plan of the "restructured" curriculum (effective in 1961) provides that every student take two basic courses, one in the freshman year and another in the senior year; a distribution of courses assuring a minimum of study in all areas; and an adequate concentration in one department plus collateral courses. The requirement in religion has been increased to two courses, one of which is Biblical History.

Construction

ERECTION of structural steel is well under way as construction of the College's new $425,000 residence hall for men is proceeding "on schedule." Steel is going up for the first of three floors with hopes of having the building "under roof" before bad weather, possibly "late January."

Total low bids for general construction, electrical, heating and plumbing amounted to $375,250, but equipment and miscellaneous costs will add another $50,000. The building is scheduled to be ready for use by mid-July 1961.

Installation of a new steam line resulted in some landscape changes. Some fill from an area above the N. J. Brumbaugh House on Moore Street (site for the proposed science building) and from the two clay tennis courts between Women's Gym and East Hall was used in covering the new heat line from the Cloister to North Dorm and at the site of the new building.

Meanwhile, a faculty consulting committee has been asked by the administration to consider "possible recommendation for new construction" of an additional service building, such as Student Union, dining hall, residence hall, or combination.

Symposium

ALUMNI of the College were given a chance to express and listen to views on higher education in a new feature of the traditional homecoming program October 22.

A symposium was held in Oller Hall at 10:30 a. m. with two prominent educators among the alumni presenting their views prior to an open discussion among four panelists. The subject was: "New Directions in Higher Education."

Guest speakers were Dr. Paul M. Bechtel '32, professor of English at Wheaton College (Ill.) and Dr. Robert B. Patrick '26, associate professor of education at The Pennsylvania State University. Dr. Bechtel is now president of the Alumni Association and Dr. Patrick is a former president.

Following the opening talks, a four-man panel interrogated the speakers and encouraged audience participation.

The panel members were: President Calvert N. Ellis '23, Dr. Telford Blough '27, supervising principal, Conemaugh Township schools; Dr. Paul Hoover '37, physician, Windsor, Pa.; William S. Murray '50, entomologist, Potomac and Severn Rivers Naval Command, Washington, D. C.

Alumni Secretary Harold B. Brumbaugh scheduled the symposium as an "experiment" with hopes that it will be a continuing education program.

program will be: Dona Novis Pacem by Ralph Vaughan Williams and Cantata No. 150 by Bach.

The College-Community Symphony, under the baton of Robert Currier, started its rehearsals in Swigart Hall for the Fall concert November 20. The first half of the program will consist of "relatively simple music" (a concerto grosso of the Baroque composer, Geminiani) and the second half will feature a performance of the Mozart clarinet concerto with Edmund Umberger of State College as guest soloist.

Wonderful Town

SPEAKING of rehearsals, the students have been preparing for the fall musical, "Wonderful Town," for presentation on Parents Day weekend, Nov. 11 and 12. A matinee following the football game with Albright has been scheduled in addition to Friday and Saturday night shows.

Lead roles were assigned to Kathleen E. Kimmel '62, Shelocta; Marion G. Kercher '64, Maple Shade, N. J., and Richard A. Caulk '63, Sewell, N. J.

THE FACULTY BRIEFCASE

Changes in Home Economics

A REVISION of the courses of study in Juniata's Department of Home Economics "to make the most of the liberal arts foundation" became effective with the opening of college.

The new program was proposed by Mrs. Marjory L. Joseph, associate professor of home economics, who is the newly appointed chairman of the department. The revisions bring the curriculum "up to date" and it is hoped will encourage students to enter one of the various professions included as part of home economics, Mrs. Joseph has explained.

Juniata, which is one of the few small liberal arts colleges in Pennsylvania offering a complete program in home economics, has re-grouped its course offerings under three main headings: Foods and Nutrition; The Individual, the Family and the Home; and Clothing, Textiles and Related Art.

Mrs. Joseph, formerly of Milan, Ohio, joined the faculty of Juniata in 1952 to serve as instructor in clothing and textiles. During part of that time, she continued her graduate study and is now a candidate for her Ph.D. degree at The Pennsylvania State University.

A graduate of the Ohio State University (B.S. in 1939 and M.S. in 1952), Mrs. Joseph had a number of years experience in the garment industry in New York and Philadelphia. She taught for three years in Berlin Heights High School, Birmingham, Ohio. Before coming to Juniata, she was a graduate assistant at Ohio State.

In recent years, Mrs. Joseph has been engaged in research projects for the U. S. Department of Agriculture in cooperation with Marketing Research Service. She was co-author of a research publication on consumer satisfaction with women's blouses.

Mrs. Marjory L. Joseph

In addition to Mrs. Joseph, other full-time members of the department are Miss Gertrude L. Butler and Miss Ann E. Jones. Mrs. Janet Wike Dore '43 of Huntingdon is an instructional assistant who is supervising the nursery school.

New Faculty

THE APPOINTMENT of six new members to the faculty, including three additions to augment the science departments, is another change caused by the "boom."

Two graduates of the College and a native Korean accepted appointments in biology, chemistry and mathematics for this year (announced in the Summer Alumni Bulletin). They are: Dr. David M. Hercules '54, chemistry; Kenneth H. Rockwell '57, biology; and Dr. Tongsoo Song, who holds three degrees in mathematics from University of Pittsburgh.

Also previously announced was the appointment of Miss Shirley M. Seagle, Chattanooga, Tenn., as instructor in modern languages.

Steven A. Barbash joined the faculty as instructor in art and Warren S. Kissinger has come on as instructor in religion.

A graduate of Bard College, Mr. Barbash holds two degrees from Yale University's School of Art (bachelor and master of fine arts). As a professional artist he has been represented in juried exhibitions throughout the East, including the National Drawing competition, Boston Arts Festival; 25th anniversary National Fine Print competition of Associated American Artists; and the International Graphic Arts Society. (Editor's note: He's a Yankee rooter!)

The Rev. Mr. Kissinger, a native of Akron, Pa., and former pastor of Brethren churches in Carlisle and Windber, is a graduate of Elizabethtown College. He holds a bachelor of divinity degree from Yale University and has taken additional work at Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg.

Among the new instructional assistants are: Janet Wike Dore '43, nursery school; Nan Heller Hunt '56, English; Marjorie Alleman Scialabba '52, English.

Admissions Staff

RONALD W. WERTZ '59 became director of admissions at the College in September after serving as assistant to Kenneth J. Wenger '50. Mr. Wenger resigned to accept an appointment as assistant to the chairman of admissions at Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh.

Mr. Wertz, a native of Lewistown, joined the staff in September 1959 in the newly created position of assistant director of admissions. He holds a B.S. degree in economics and business administration.

A graduate of Lewistown High School (1955), Mr. Wertz is a son of Mrs. Charles W. Wertz, 756 Midland Ave., York, Pa. He is married to the former Ann Larkin '59, now a home economics teacher in Huntingdon schools.

President Ellis also appointed Robert A. Doyle '60, as admissions counselor to aid Mr. Wertz in the college's expanding program of contacting and interviewing prospective students.

A native of Johnstown, Mr. Doyle holds a B.A. degree in economics and business administration. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul A. Doyle, 832 Vickroy Ave., Johnstown and is a graduate of Ferndale High School.

Other New Faces

A NEW DIRECTOR of residence for Founders-Brumbaugh-Oneida Halls for women began her duties in September. Mrs. Dorothy R. Spillers, R. D. 2, New Kensington, who is a mother of six sons and three daughters, joined Mrs. Mary Horoschak, director of East Hall since its opening, to supplement the dean of women's staff.

The Rev. Clyde L. Carter, executive secretary, Middle District, Church

A research grant, valued at $4,500 has been awarded to Dr. David M. Hercules '54, associate professor of chemistry at the College, by the Research Corporation of New York. It will be used to conduct a project entitled: "Synthesis and Spectral Properties of Substituted Aza-Naphthalenes and their metal chelates." The money will help to obtain certain items of specialized equipment, chemicals, and provide a stipend for students to work on the project.

IS COLLEGE COMPATIBLE WITH MARRIAGE?*

By Margaret Mead

Anthropologist Margaret Mead, America's best-known woman scientist, takes a look at a new cultural pattern in college in this article written for alumni publications exclusively. And she doesn't like what she sees! Doubtless many will disagree with Dr. Mead's conclusions, but we believe that it is a worthwhile function of alumni magazines to stimulate readers to think.

ALL OVER the United States, undergraduate marriages are increasing, not only in the municipal colleges and technical schools, which take for granted a workaday world in which learning is mostly training to make a living, but also on the green campuses once sacred to a more leisurely pursuit of knowledge.

Before we become too heavily committed to this trend, it may be wise to pause and question why it has developed, what it means, and whether it endangers the value of undergraduate education as we have known it.

The full-time college, in which a student is free for four years to continue the education begun in earlier years, is only one form of higher education. Technical schools, non-residence municipal colleges, junior colleges, extension schools which offer preparation for professional work on a part-time and indefinitely extended basis, institutions which welcome adults for a single course at any age: all of these are "higher," or at least "later," education. Their proliferation has tended to obscure our view of the college itself and what it means.

But the university, as it is called in Europe—the college, as it is often called here—is essentially quite different from "higher education" that is only later, or more, education. It is, in many ways, a prolongation of the freedom of childhood; it can come only once in a lifetime and at a definite stage of development, after the immediate trials of puberty and before the responsibilities of full adulthood.

The university student is a unique development of our kind of civilization, and a special pattern is set for those who have the ability and the will to devote four years to exploring the civilization of which they are a part. This self-selected group (and any other method than self-selection is doomed to failure) does not include all of the most able, the most skilled, or the most gifted in our society. It includes, rather, those who are willing to accept four more years of an intellectual and psychological moratorium, in which they explore, test, meditate, discuss, passionately espouse, and passionately repudiate ideas about the past and the future. The true undergraduate university is still an "as-if" world in which the student need not commit himself yet. For this is a period in which it is possible not only to specialize but to taste, if only for a semester, all the possibilities of scholarship and science, of great commitment, and the special delights to which civilized man has access today.

UNDERGRADUATE MARRIAGES ARE INCREASING . . .

One of the requirements of such a life has been freedom from responsibility. Founders and administrators of universities have struggled through the years to provide places where young men, and more recently young women, and young men and women together, would be free—in a way they can never be free again—to explore before they settle on the way their lives are to be lived.

This freedom once, as a matter of course, included freedom from domestic responsibilities—from the obligation to wife and children or to husband and children. True, it was often confused by notions of propriety: married women and unmarried girls were believed to be improper dormitory companions, and a trace of the monastic tradition that once forbade dons to marry lingered on in our men's colleges. But essentially the prohibition of undergraduate marriage was part and parcel of our belief that marriage entails responsibility.

A student may live on a crust in a garret and sell his clothes to buy books; a father who does the same thing is a very different matter. An unmarried girl may prefer scholarship to clerking in an office; as the wife of a future nuclear physicist or judge of the Supreme Court—or possibly of the research worker who will find a cure for cancer—she acquires a duty to give up her own delighted search for knowledge and to help put her husband through professional school. If, additionally, they have a child or so, both sacrifice—she her whole intellectual interest, he all but the absolutely essential professional grind to "get through" and "get established." As the undergraduate years come to be primarily not a search for knowledge and individual growth, but a suitable setting for the search for a mate, the proportion of full-time students who are free to give themselves the four irreplaceable years is being steadily whittled down.

Is It a Privilege?

SHOULD WE MOVE SO far away from the past that all young people, whether in college, in technical school, or as apprentices, expect to be married and, partially or wholly, to be supported by parents and society while they complete their training for this complex world? Should undergraduates be considered young adults, and should the privileges and responsibilities of mature young adults be theirs, whether they are learning welding or Greek, bookkeeping or physics, dress-making or calculus? Whether they are rich or poor? Whether they come from educated homes or from homes without such interests? Whether they look forward to the immediate gratifications of private life or to a wider and deeper role in society?

As one enumerates the possibilities, the familiar cry, "But this is democracy," interpreted as treating all alike no matter how different they may be, assaults the ear. Is it in fact a privilege to be given full adult responsibilities at eighteen or at twenty, to be forced to choose someone as a lifetime mate before one has found out who one is, oneself—to be forced somehow to combine learning with earning? Not only the question of who is adult, and when, but of the extent to which a society forces adulthood on its young people, arises here.

Civilization, as we know it, was preceded by a prolongation of the learning period—first biologically, by slowing down the process of physical maturation and by giving to children many long, long years for many long, long thoughts; then socially, by developing special institutions in which young people, still protected and supported, were free to explore the past and dream of the future. May it not be a new barbarism to force them to marry so soon?

"Force" is the right word. The mothers who worry about boys and girls who don't begin dating in high school start the process. By the time young people reach college, pressuring parents are joined by college administrators, by advisers and counselors and deans, by student-made rules about exclusive possession of a girl twice dated by the same boy, by the preference of employers for a boy who has demonstrated a tenacious intention of becoming a settled married man. Students who wish to marry may feel they are making magnificent, revolutionary bids for adulthood and responsibility; yet, if one listens to their pleas, one hears only the recited roster of the "others"—schoolmates, classmates, and friends—who are "already married."

The picture of embattled academic institutions valiantly but vainly attempting to stem a flood of undergraduate marriages is ceasing to be true. College presidents have joined the matchmakers. Those who head our one-sex colleges worry about transportation or experiment gingerly with ways in which girls or boys can be integrated into academic life so that they'll stay on the campus on weekends. Recently the president of one of our good, small, liberal arts colleges explained to me, apologetically, "We still have to have rules because, you see, we don't have enough married-student housing." The implication was obvious: the ideal would be a completely married undergraduate body, hopefully at a time not far distant.

With this trend in mind, we should examine some of the premises involved. The lower-class mother hopes her daughter will marry before she is pregnant. The parents of a boy who is a shade gentler or more interested in art than his peers hope their son will marry as soon as possible and be "normal." Those who taught GI's after the last two wars and enjoyed their maturity join the chorus to insist that marriage is steadying: married students study harder and get better grades. The worried leaders of one-sex colleges note how their undergraduates seem younger, "less mature," or "more underdeveloped" than those at the big coeducational universities. They worry also about the tendency of girls to leave at the end of their sophomore year for "wider experience"—a simple euphemism for "men to marry."

And parents, who are asked to contribute what they would have contributed anyway so that the young people may marry, fear—sometimes consciously and sometimes unconsciously—that the present uneasy peacetime will not last, that depression or war will overtake their children as it overtook them. They push their children at ever younger ages, in Little Leagues and eighth-grade proms, to act out—quickly, before it is too late—the adult dreams that may be interrupted. Thus they too consent, connive, and plan toward the earliest possible marriages for both daughters and sons.

Ominous Trends Noted

UNDERGRADUATE MARRIAGES have not been part of American life long enough for us to be certain what the effect will be. But two ominous trends can be noted.

One is the "successful" student marriage, often based on a high-school choice which both sets of parents have applauded because it assured an appropriate mate with the right background, and because it made the young people settle down. If not a high-school choice, then the high-school pattern is repeated: finding a girl who will go steady, dating her exclusively, and letting the girl propel the boy toward a career choice which will make early marriage possible.

These young people have no chance to find themselves in college because they have clung to each other so exclusively. They can take little advantage of college as a broadening experience, and they often show less breadth of vision as seniors than they

Margaret Mead is at 58 a person of great productivity and activity. She is a prolific writer, an indefatigable lecturer, a world traveler, and above all a trenchant observer of native cultures both at home and abroad.

Her present position is that of associate curator of ethnology of the American Museum of Natural History in New York and adjunct professor of anthropology at Columbia University. A graduate of Barnard (B.A. '23) and of Columbia (M.A. '24, Ph.D. '29), Dr. Mead holds six honorary degrees. She is president of the American Anthropological Association and a past president of the World Federation for Mental Health.

Dr. Mead has spent many years among various South Seas peoples (and had to learn to use seven primitive languages). Out of her experience in Samoa came her first book, in 1928, Coming of Age in Samoa, which has become a classic among cultural studies and a best-seller as well (it is available in a paperback edition). She has written ten other books—not to mention those in which she has had a role as co-author or editor—all eminently readable as well as scholarly. Two published in 1959 are An Anthropologist at Work and People and Places, the latter written especially for young people.

The perspective Dr. Mead has gained from studying small, homogeneous, stable societies has led her to make some forthright criticisms of education, child-rearing, sex, and marriage in the United States.

did as freshmen. They marry, either as undergraduates or immediately upon graduation, have children in quick succession, and retire to the suburbs to have more children—bulwarking a choice made before either was differentiated as a human being. Help from both sets of parents, begun in the undergraduate marriage or after commencement day, perpetuates their immaturity. At thirty they are still immature and dependent, their future mortgaged for twenty or thirty years ahead, neither husband nor wife realizing the promise that a different kind of undergraduate life might have enabled each to fulfill.

Such marriages are not failures, in the ordinary sense. They are simply wasteful of young, intelligent people who might have developed into differentiated and conscious human beings. But with four or five children, the husband firmly tied to a job which he would not dare to leave, any move toward further individual development in either husband or wife is a threat to the whole family. It is safer to read what both agree with (or even not to read at all and simply look at TV together), attend the same clubs, listen to the same jokes—never for a minute relaxing their possession of each other, just as when they were teen-agers.

Such a marriage is a premature imprisonment of young people, before they have had a chance to explore their own minds and the minds of others, in a kind of desperate, devoted symbiosis. Both had college educations, but the college served only as a place in which to get a degree and find a mate from the right family background, a background which subsequently swallows them up.

The second kind of undergraduate marriage is more tragic. Here, the marriage is based on the boy's promise and the expendability of the girl. She, at once or at least as soon as she gets her bachelor's degree, will go to work at some secondary job to support her husband while he finishes his degree. She supports him faithfully and becomes identified in his mind with the family that has previously supported him, thus underlining his immature status. As soon as he becomes independent, he leaves her. That this pattern occurs between young people who seem ideally suited to each other suggests that it was the period of economic dependency that damaged the marriage relationship, rather than any intrinsic incompatibility in the original choice.

Both types of marriage, the "successful" and the "unsuccessful," emphasize the key issue: the tie between economic responsibility and marriage in our culture. A man who does not support himself is not yet a man, and a man who is supported by his wife or lets his parents support his wife is also only too likely to feel he is not a man. The GI students' success actually supports this position: they had earned their GI stipend, as men, in their country's service. With a basic economic independence they could study, accept extra help from their families, do extra work, and still be good students and happy husbands and fathers.

Two Conclusions

THERE ARE THEN, two basic conclusions. One is that under any circumstances a full student life is incompatible with early commitment and domesticity. The other is that it is incompatible only under conditions of immaturity. Where the choice has been made maturely, and where each member of the pair is doing academic work which deserves full support, complete economic independence should be provided. For other types of student marriage, economic help should be refused.

This kind of discrimination would remove the usual dangers of parent-supported, wife-supported, and too-much-work-supported student marriages. Married students, male and female, making full use of their opportunities as undergraduates, would have the right to accept from society this extra time to become more intellectually competent people. Neither partner would be so tied to a part-time job that relationships with other students would be impaired. By the demands of high scholarship, both would be assured of continued growth that comes from association with other high-caliber students as well as with each other.

But even this solution should be approached with caution. Recent psychological studies, especially those of Piaget, have shown how essential and precious is the intellectual development of the early post-pubertal years. It may be that any domesticity takes the edge off the eager, flaming curiosity on which we must depend for the great steps that Man must take, and take quickly, if he and all living things are to continue on this earth.

THE JUNIATA SPORTS PARADE

Indians Maintain Winning Tradition

DON LAYMAN, Juniata's cross-country ace, led the Tribe harriers in pursuit of their fourth straight undefeated year. They had 20 straight victories at mid-season.

The smooth-running senior from Somerset, beaten only twice in four years of competition, continued to improve each time. He toured the Gettysburg course in a near-record 23:19 to lead Juniata to a one-sided 17-42 triumph, to open this campaign.

Pressing Layman hard were Bob Berthold '63 from Paterson, N. J.

(Passaic Valley High), and Galen Heckman '61 from Smithsburg, Md.

Two freshmen, Chet Berkey, also of Somerset, and Bill Chew, Auburn, N. J., broke into the "top five" of Coach Mike Snider's team. They were finishing ahead of two lettermen, Ned Smith, Willow Grove, Pa., and Charley Mack, New Florence, Pa.

On the Gridiron

ONCE AGAIN in 1960—like in 1956—the big chiefs were gone from Juniata's football tribe which had its streak of 27 games without loss snapped in the final game of last season by Albright. But once again, Coach Ken Bunn (now in his fifth year) felt that the tradition of winning over the past 12 years was the No. 1 asset.

"We're out to start a new streak," said the former Penn Stater when practice began Sept. 1. The Indians did open with a hard-fought 6-0 victory over Westminster's always tough Titans, but then took a step out of the Middle Atlantic Conference college class and dropped a 26-0 decision to Gettysburg. In their first effort to regain the MAC title, the Indians looked impressive in defeating Moravian 20-0 for the 32nd straight victory on the home gridiron.

Bunn recognized that eight missing seniors—just as in 1956—(seven of them were starters) might "cause a letdown." However, he discovered that "the spirit was better" as about 30 holdovers, including 15 lettermen, and a dozen "eager and anxious" freshmen competed for the vacancies.

Among the more-than-usual problems was finding replacements in the backfield for the famed Berrier twins. Vacancies at the tackle posts also caused some concern. However, several switches in player positions solved some problems.

Bunn was "busier than ever" attempting to juggle personnel to find a starting combination. When the season opened two senior halfbacks, Harry Long, Berwick, and Stan (Skip) Walasik, Carnegie, joined Ron Poruban, Portage sophomore quarterback, and a "transplanted" sophomore end, Al Tavalisky, Windber, in the backfield.

On the front line, six battle-tested seniors and one lone freshman drew the starting assignments, but some of them were playing new positions.

Jim Seacrist, Greensburg, and Dave Helsel, Hollidaysburg, were at ends; Co-captain Orlando Falcione, Coraopolis, moved from guard to tackle and teamed with Pete Emrick, Harrisburg; Co-captain Roy Martin, North Braddock, and Grey Berrier, 205-pound freshman "kid brother" of the famed Berrier twins, started at guards. John Pessy, Coraopolis, shifted from guard to become the starting center.

Jack Beamer, Harrisburg, and Jim Chesney, Berwick, both junior fullbacks, were getting plenty of action with Tony Faber, Aliquippa, and Phil Rohm, Huntingdon, two letter-winning halfbacks, and Ken Bechtel, Roaring Spring, at quarter.

Other J-winners who were called upon included Ray Erney, Harrisburg, who moved from center to end; Al Zalnasky, Tyre, Pa., who was shifted from end to tackle to take advantage of 220 pounds; and Emery DiDonato, Baden, and Bob Melago, Bovard, a pair of tough senior guards.

Follow The Indians In 1960-61

GIFTS IN KIND

College Receives Useable Equipment

By Charles Bargerstock '47
DIRECTOR OF DEVELOPMENT

THE COLLEGE has benefitted greatly in the past year by gifts of equipment which have been valued conservatively at more than $7,000. This equipment, most of which has been received by the science departments, was given to the College in a "used but useable" condition. In some instances the equipment was overhauled or renovated before delivery.

The "Gift in Kind" story started in the Spring of 1959. J. Paul H. Hively, vice-president of the Lowry Electric Company, Williamsport, and vice-president of the parents' organization, had been helpful in obtaining equipment for two colleges in his home area and suggested its possibilities to Juniata.

Generators Obtained

At the time, the physics department needed a motor-generator set. Mr. Hively inspected two supposedly obsolete generators in the basement of Science Hall and determined that they could be rebuilt. Accordingly, the generators were delivered to the Burnham Standard Steel Company near Lewistown, where they were picked up by the General Electric Company truck from York. Meanwhile, Mr. Hively managed to obtain two motors from the Woolrich Woolen Mills, Woolrich, which were shipped to the Williamsport Technical Institute for rebuilding. Along with starters furnished by the Lowry Electric Company plus some miscellaneous equipment, the components were eventually assembled at the Technical Institute and mounted on a steel framework donated by the Minkin Salvage Company, Williamsport.

The College picked up this unit, which has been valued at over $1500, and the only cost was less than $20 for transportation. Since that time an even larger unit valued at $2500 has been assembled through gifts of equipment from the same organizations and will be used in the new Science Building.

Donate Transformers

The Darling Valve Company, Williamsport, Pa., donated several transformers to the physics department about this time which were valued at over $500.

Meantime, Dr. William C. Hunt '44, director of scientific relations at the Mellon Institute, Pittsburgh, learned of this new program. Three Pressurevac Pumps, a Heathkit RF Generator and a Jackson Audio Generator were donated at an approximate saving of $500.

Later another company, which wishes to remain anonymous, donated a Potentiometer which would cost more than $1000 if purchased. Then three electron guns were needed. Within a week, three television tubes, which contain these electron guns, were delivered to the front door of Science Hall from the Marion, Ind., plant of RCA.

More equipment was received in October, 1959, from Mellon Institute through Dr. Hunt's efforts. In this same month, the Wellsboro Electric Company, Wellsboro, Pa. decided to terminate operation of its retail store business. Mr. Hively convinced them to give Juniata College an opportunity to look over this "going-out-of-business" stock. Paul F. Friend, business manager, went to Wellsboro and obtained electrical supplies which the Wellsboro firm wrote off its books at $916.84. This was greatly below the retail cost, and gratis to Juniata.

Recently Dr. James H. Freeman '44, an advisory chemist with the Westinghouse Electric Corporation in Pittsburgh, has delivered several valuable pieces of equipment given to Juniata by his employer. The Keystone Carton Company, St. Marys, Pa., has donated supplies. Still another contributor to this effort has been the Magee Carpet Company of Bloomsburg, Pa. Additional equipment has been received from Government Surplus in Harrisburg.

This program has been successful but there are many items needed for all departments of the college. The heads of each department have submitted lists of needed equipment because annual budgets do not always permit the purchasing of all equipment.

The college's development office has carried out the operation and has made many valuable contacts with many industries. The office is now seeking the support of the alumni in continuing this program. Lists of needed equipment will be supplied to any interested person.

Loading this generator into a station wagon was the start of the Gifts in Kind program which has resulted in much-needed used but useable equipment for Juniata's science departments. Three members of the College's maintenance staff shown are (left to right): Clay Sechrist, Bill Thompson, Roy Ross.

PERSONALS

News notes for this section should be sent to Alumni Office. Deadline for receiving Personals for the Winter issue is Jan. 1, 1961. Information for this issue was prepared by Mrs. Robert S. McClain, editorial assistant.

60

Robert (Bob) Adams and family have moved to 739 N. Marshall St., Lancaster, Pa., where Bob started as a junior auditor June 26, for Armstrong Cork Co.

Born: to Calvin '58 and Betty Jane (Bowman) Beam ex'60, a son, Calvin Grant, Jr., on June 26, 1960.

Judith Ann Garman and Robert E. Schwalenberg were married in the Trinity Lutheran Church, Lemoyne, Pa. Classmates in the wedding party were Barbara Ann Fritchey, Robert J. Solomon and Anthony A. Mont; other Juniataans were Wayne M. Rockey ex'61 and Raymond T. Erney '62. Bob has entered the Burroughs Corp. training program in Pittsburgh and they are living in Sewickley.

Married: Richard L. Isenberg to Janet Long, on July 16, 1960. The newlyweds are living at 1019 Potomac Ave., Alexandria, Va., where Mr. Isenberg is affiliated with Sears-Roebuck & Co.

Robert A. Doyle, a native of Johnstown, has been named the new admissions counselor at Juniata. (See story in Faculty Briefcase.)

Carol Ann Coughenour reports she was elected to teach at the Penns Valley Area Schools. Her address is 16 Woodsdale Park, State College, Pa.

Leora Mae Furlong married Kenneth M. Leonard '54, August 20, 1960. Leora is an English teacher at the Huntingdon Area High School and Ken is employed in the Jane Brumbaugh, Carol Miller and Roberta Savage are teaching in the Washington, D. C., area and sharing an apartment at 5511 Parkland Court, District Heights, S. E., Washington 28, D. C.

Beverly DeJanney became the bride of Pitt graduate physics student, Ray Pfrogner September 3. Beverly is not only a new housewife but also obtained the job of being assistant to Dr. Richard M. Fox, associate curator of Carnegie Museum.

Pat Varec ex'60 lists a California address—11151 Freeman Ave., Inglewood 2, Calif. She is working as student receptionist in Lennox High School and plans to be married October 15.

Jill Anne Muir and Robert H. Klingler were married August 7, 1960, at Huntingdon. Susan Sheaffer, college roommate of the bride was maid of honor. Little Miss Bonnie Friend, daughter of Paul '37 and Mary '40 Friend, was the flower girl. The newlyweds reside at 133 Maple St., Hershey. Jill is home economics instructor at Central Dauphin High School, Harrisburg, and her husband has been named director of physical education and coach at the Milton Hershey School.

Participating in the 1960 Technical Summer Program at the United States Steel Corporation Research Center in Monroeville, Pa., was Jesse W. Shilling. This program included 62 college students from 20 different schools. More than half of the students are already in graduate school or will enter this fall, and the remainder have completed at least three years of engineering or science.

Janice Christie and Alan Baer of Manchester, Tenn., were married and journeyed to Canada for a honeymoon. After their trip they plan to live in Manchester where Jan's hubby is an engineer.

Nancy Jane Swartz and James A. Hopper '60 were married August 20, 1960 and will live in Freeport, N. Y. Elizabeth Shearer '59 was one of the bridesmaids in the wedding party. Nancy is teaching Spanish and English in Freeport senior High School this year and Jim is doing graduate work at the Art Student League in New York City.

Stanley L. Davis, Jr. is now married and continuing his ministerial study at Bethany Biblical Seminary, 3435 W. Van Buren St., Chicago 24, Ill.

Mary Louise Schade was married to George Ronald Garner '61, June 11, 1960, in Collingswood, N. J. Mary Lou taught during the past year in the Haddon Twp. Area.
